RICHMOND, MADISON COUNTY, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1911

NUMBER 22

Going to Build?

IF SO, LET US FIGURE YOUR

Lumber

BLANTON-CONGLETON LUMBER COMPANY

Near'L & A. Depot

Telephone 425

THE NEW

Kentucky Disc Drills

We have just received a car load of Kentucky Disc Drills. Before buying call and let us show you this drill. Only force feed drill on the market. Runs alike up hill and down when the hopper is full or almost empty. 🚜 🚜

D. B. Shackeleford & Co.

Main Street, West

WHEN your residences and store buildings need to painted and papered, or decorated in any way, see me about it, as I am prepared to do all kinds of

Painting, Decorating and Paper Hanging.

I will use nothing in the way of materials on your work except such as I invite you to inspect at all times before being applied to your house, etc. Also, I will appreciate a share of your patronage, and promise you in return for same honest work and materials. Very respectfully yours,

W. L. LEEDS

Third Street

Richmond, Ky

DOSITIVE or negative. Two States. POSITIVE, THE INDEPENDENT, he who provides for himself. NEGA-TIVE, he who fails to provide for himself and his depend-

State Bank & Trust Co.,

RICHMOND

KENTUCKY

EQUIPMENT ELECTRICALLY

DINING CARS SERVING ALL MEALS A LA CARTE

GOOD RETURNING UNTIL MAY 31, 1912, FOR FULL PARTICULARS, CALL ON ANY TICKET AGENT, QUEEN & CRESCENT HOUTE, H. C. KING, Passenger and Ticket Agent, 101 E. Main St., LEXINGTON, KY.

Crow Was a Freak.

At a recent crow shoot in the Hatton castle rookers, Aberdevashire, Scotland and untied the rope from the trunk eager curiosity as to what he should Still, without the knowledge of his own powers, there occurred to him no sudden impulse again, she called him.

He stopped, hesitated, looked back, turned and went on again. He was deeply hurt. She could not see him go. It was unthinkable that he should go. He was dangerous away from her.

But this time he did not heed. An

"John!" she cried. "John Revell

And at that sound the man stopped.

"John!" she repeated. "John!"

as if some latent memory, some recol against the obscurity of years, as

"John!" she cried again, coming

She thrust out her hand; she touch-

She laid her hand upon his shoulder

There was amity, confidence, reas-

"John!" she said, and then she Obediently he followed her. She on in triumph. If he had learned

She felt elated that night ere she made a sort of a barrier to it, not a

CHAPTER IV.

Lesson and Labor.

The task to which she set herself in

It was hard and very tedious work time until the sweat beaded her forequickness of his apprehension, for he set to work with a right good will and

She had got in the habit of speak eant something to him.

tearer to him.

"Man!" she called again.

"Man!" she said.

rope held she was free. She was conscious of another thing, too, and that was that he was learning a sad and bitter lesson of physical restraint to eaten into his soul. He had been maswhich he had never before been subtered by force. He could not under stand it. He did not love the masters.

She had rejoiced in his companionthing to do, her mind something to he had been subjected. He turned and work upon, and would do more in the walked away from her. She stood future, but she never enjoyed a mo- amazed, staring after him. It was the ment's freedom more. She ran to the first time he had withdrawn himself little amphitheater formed by the from her presence. Where was he cliffs where the cave was and throwing aside her blouse and skirt, she lux-Was there to be enmity between uriated in a bath in the fresh, cool, them? In vague terror, moved by a lelightful waters of the pool at the base of the fall. There was a certain mount of apprehension, for, of course, ne might break his tether at any time, but she was sufficiently confident not to let this take away the pleasure she felt in the bath of fresh water after the long experience with the sait seas. By her side she could control him. If she had had a cake of soap she would have been completely happy. She had much to do and she could idea sprang to her brain, working not linger. For one thing, she had to quickly under the pressure. She lifted face the problems of clothes. She had up her voice, for he was far from her absolutely nothing when she landed except what she wore. Besides the now and plodding steadily, doggedly toward the trees. usual anderwear these consisted of her blue serge blouse and skirt—a Charnock!" short skirt at that-and a silk petti-She left the blouse and skirt He turned and looked at her again.

outside on the rocks where they would thrust the knife between her waist soon dry in the sun. They had been and the rope which she had rapidly wetted so often that there was no pos- twisted about her middle and walked sibility of their shrinking further. Then she took stock of the rest. With something, so had she. Some one else needles and thread, of which she had called this man John in days gone possessed some store in the housewife by. The sound was not unfamiliar to which had been saved from her bag, him. He answered to his name. That she thought she could make shift to was he, John Revell Charnock! She manufacture three or four garments, feit as if she were entering upon the open at the neck, without sleeves and solution of the mystery of his preswith skirts that came to the knee, ence. Perhaps the morrow would tell. garments just sufficient for modesty. She would examine that boat and There was no other need for clothes, those decaying evidences of humanity so far as that went, in that balmy on the farther shore.

Naturally she shrank from this, but went to sleep in the cave. The clew unless she restorted to this expedient to the mystery she fancied was in her her clothes would wear out all at hand. She had such occupation before once. Indeed, they were in none too her as she had never hoped to come good a condition as it was, and when upon in a desert island, at least. The they were worn out she would have rope added to her security. By piling nothing. She would not have hesi- vones before the entrance to the cave tated a moment had it not been for and reinforcing them with the boards the man, but man or not, the decision from the wreck of the boat and some in her mind was one to which she fallen tree branches on the shore, she

Unlike most overeducated women, barrier that would have kept out of she was still expert with her needle, the cave any one who desired to enter, and as her garments were to be of but one which would have to be rethe simplest she had not much diffi- moved before one could enter. And culty in making over her silk skirt in she so arranged matters, tying the end the way she fancied. Belted in at the of the rope to her wrist, that any atwaist, it would do. She would use the tempt to remove it would immediately rope that bound the man for that pur- waken her. That night she slept sepose, keeping it always about her, She cure and unmolested. had, of course, but one pair of stockings and one pair of light canvas boating shoes, which were almost cut to pieces. She would have to go bare-

Putting her blue serge dress and the the morning would have been an iminculding her shoes and stockings, she deed it was a hard one to her. The stepped out on the sands, bare armed. buried boat lay in the sand some rods bare footed, a gleaming figure like to distant from the nearest tree. There an Olympian goddess. She was a was absolutely no shelter from the woman naturally dark in complexion, flerce heat of the tropic sun. She was and while the sun would probably burn not yet fully accumstomed to it, and her cruelly and burn her young flesh, indeed perhaps she never would be never exposed to its intensity, darker, able to endure it without some sort she would not grow red or blister. She of a head covering. She improvised was thankful for that with unconscious a bonnet from the leaf of a low springfemininity. At any rate, she must got | ing palm tree, which, with her remainused to going out in the sun without ing handkerchief, she tied about her a hat, too. People, natives who were head. And then with her watchful born and lived in this latitude, did friend by her side she descended the me accustomed to such things, beach to the boat and began to dig. she knew, so undoubtedly could she. With these thoughts, she stepped With the flat make-shift shovel in the around the headland and walked shape of the rough piece of board it across the Beach toward the palm tree | was almost impossible to lift the sand. where she could see in the fading light Yet she attacked the task resolutely of the afternoon her prisoner was still and persevered sturdily for a long

Modesty is a negative term. That, head, her back ached, her hands, unwhich is indecent exposure in a ball- used to manual toil of any kind, were sea shore. Certainly this man had no that she would have to give it over. concept of such a quality. He had not noticed before when she had come labors whether the constant observaout barefoot to swim to the barrier tion which the man had subjected her reef, and yet somehow she fancied as to would enable him to continue the he stared at her approaching that this work. As an experiment she handed time he marked the difference. And a him the shovel, stepped out of the exslow, flery blush flamed over her from cavation she had made and pointed her bare feet to her bare head, ex- toward it. He understood instantly. tended along her bare arms. She She was surprised at the unusual stopped under the persuasion of impulse to turn and go back to the cave ind resume her clothing, at least so in a minute the sand was flying. She ong as it might last. But she was a noticed half in envy how much more woman of strong will. She reasoned progress he made than she could efthat all the emetions to which she was subject were in her own bosom; that play for him, and yet after a little the man before her neither knew nor cared as to the things which vexed shovel and looked at her.

might be. Indeed, she approached him with a certain terror, accounted for partly by the situation and partly by the fact that in making this change in her garments she had, as it were, cut herself off from civilisation and brought herself in some degree at least nearer his physical level. But she could not leave him there all night. Summoning her cour-

ROYAL BAKING-POWDER Absolutely Pure

MAKES HOME BAKING EASY

Light Biscuit Delicious Cake . Dainty Pastries Fine Puddings Flaky Crusts

The only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

ual development would keep pace with of various sorts in great plenty on the the practical, she would be thoroughly satisfied with her educational pro-

She mused on the problem as he labored silently and vigorously. He stopped once or twice, but she kept She approached him. As she did so him to it, a feat vastly greater than and when she could get near enough she realized, until the interior of the to him, she observed that wrinkling boat, which was a small ship's boat, a dinghy, had been entirely cleared which she had noticed before. It was out. She had watched carefully every spadeful of sand which had been tossed over the buried gunwales and now she searched eagerly the boat itself. There were lockers at either end. These she opened, finding nothing therein but mouldering remains of cloth, bags of some sort which she surmised might have contained ship's bread, and a little barrel or keg, which had probably carried water for the

She Watched Carefully Every Spade-

The boat appeared to be in an exwere even a pair of oars lying on the thwarts. If she could have dug it out of tall grass and compared it with he could have launched it and used it. But such a task was utterly beyond no gain in having the boat affoat. She the barrier reef and there was nothing to row for in the lagoon.

She easily broke the rotting lines with which the oars were secured and took them out. They would be useful perhaps in some way. And then after a long look at the boat and with a feeling that her labor had been mainly wasted, she was about to turn away when the thought struck her that netimes boats carried the names of the ships to which they belonged on nstinctively and naturally she cluded that she was correct, gave her no clew from which to build a was interesting, that was all. Her first hought was to leave it where it was, but her second thought was better. With the aid of the stout piece of board which had served her for a shovel, she hammered away at the stern piece until she broke it off. She there in the sand for many years, for the wood was britt'e and the fastenings largely destroyed, for the stern came easily, away. She laid it fect. What was labor for her was aside for a moment intending to preserve it with the Bible. Heaven space he stopped, threw down the knows what dream of future usefulness in the way of evidence establish-She had in her hand the sailor's ing to him as if he understood, so she ing identity these might be, entered pointed to the shovel again, exclaim- her minn.

Then she threw herself down under Her meaning was obvious to him if her meaning was not it countly was in the cave with the book. She did her language was not. It equally was not are used to carry it around with her. She had no desire whatever to proceed with his task, but he was still under the constraint of he was still under the her superior personality and presently be did as she hade him. It amused be did as she hade him. It amused their meal off the fruits of the man before her looked younger and the man before her looked younger that the man before her looked younger and the man before her looked younger and the man before her looked younger that the man before her looked younger and the man before her looked younger that the man before her looked younger and the less than that I must be noon thine. They man he can be seen that the man her could have to be scribtly than that the man her could have to be scribtly the man her could have the man her could hav her to reflect that to all the other less sons, so remakable as almost to make sons as remakable as almost to make sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained their mean of the fruits of the less he sons as remained the fruits of the less he sons as remained the fruits of the fruits of the less he sons as remained the fruits of t his brain reel and whirl, he was now her at her suggestion in the sign lan-island and she was becoming accustomed to the diet by degrees.

She passed the noon hour in trying to add to the mental equipment of her companion. He could say a number of words now and had some idea of their meaning, although he had not yet attempted to frame sentences nor had she vet tried to teach him so to do. It was pleasant under the shade of the trees. She found herself marreling at times as to the contentment that possessed her, a product of the age suddenly plunged into the Edenlike existence which her forebears might have enjoyed ten thousand

The hours ran on until the declinng sun and the coolness that came with the late afternoon warned her knife she carefully cut away the rushes, being particular not to disturb the bones of the skeletons. As before she did all this in the face of a vigorous remonstrance from the man. In some way, she could not tell how, the place was horrible to him. He would never have come near it evidently of his own will, and although the power of memory in him was but latent, the impression that had been produced upon him by what she found there at some period in his life was strong enough to make him avoid it forever.

She did not ask him for assistance, indeed, she would not have trusted him with the knife under any circumstances, and he made no attempt to keep close to her. He stood on the outskirts of the coppice in a great state of excitement, uttering without sequence or reason such words as she had taught him. To him, in this instance, she gave no heed.

Presently she had completely un covered the two skeletons. She had studied anatomy, but was not a specialist in that department of human learning. She thought that the skeleellent state of preservation. There ton before her was that of a woman. She measured its length with a piece of the sand entirely, she fancied she own. They were both of a size. The Besides there would have been had long since rotted away and disapwould not dare to take it out beyond the person whose bones lay there had worn any article of gold or silver, which, being rustless would have survived the long exposure, they were probably buried in the earth beneath or to piece them together; that would the bones. She would attend to that at the feet of the human remains and decided instantly that they were the which had probably belonged to a had recourse to the shovel once more, dog collar. There was an inscription would keep it from falling out, she norance or temperament she could stooped down and gathered the bones | not say. Was fear, after all, under the repulsive as the task was, and carried lived, a purely artificial quality, or was boat carefully and then moved by a as the skeletons in the coppice which sudden impulse, she went back and she had buried. Was that avoidance she put in the boat also. It was an it instinct or did it arise from recoleasy matter to tumble a few spadefuls | lection? She rather fancied the last her was John Revell Charnock and as- of sand over the bones. Then she left lf so, it was evident that the man had knowing that time would soon refill would have taken years for the metal be safely buried unless some other in- woman's person to rust away, for the vestigator should uncover them-The man had assisted her in no way | iy to disappear. n this process, but his excitement was very great. While she stood looking cherished, upon that prayer that he did not believe in it. The truth was down at the little heap of sand which covered all that remained of this for of his education. She had been so suc- was despite the assertion of the will refund their money without ques land, wondering if the fale of that | ing him, in influencing him and swaytrespasser upon these silent shores ing him so far that she had abundant would some day be hers, the man suddenly dropped on his knees as she had the end. It was quite evident that life seen him do on her first night on the would be easily supported under the began that mumbled jargon which she on that Island. She need have no saw now that the boat must have lain | had not been able to understand, but | physical concern as to her material which had seemed to her more like well being or comfort, and here was had given vent. She was surprised be- made her for the time being forget yond measure, yet she listened with the rest of the world. every faculty on the alert if possible realisation of them, so that the spirit island abounded. There were he who henitates is forever lost.

prayer and that the one vestige of iess of this man in this way. "Now I lay me down to sleep!" How ng it had been since she had said that? She believed nothing, she cared for nothing, but the woman hid her face in her hands for a moment. She clenched her teeth and forced out of her mind that which at that moment was striving for birth. She was to teach this man everything. She was to make him know life and history. She was to bring him in touch with all the glories of to-day and she recognized in that hour, although she did not and could not admit it, that perhaps he might teach her something as well, something that she had not known or something that she had forgotten, without the knowledge of which all her science was a vain, a collah, a futile thing. The little prayer was ended. The nan rose to his feet. She took her spade and went back to the place where the bodies had lain and there began carefully to scrape away the earth, examining scrupulously every shovelful ere she threw it aside. In one place where the hand had lain, she remembered, her labors were rewarded. She came across two rings, a diamond and a plain circlet of gold. These she placed in her tunic with the collar and continued her digging. was growing late and growing dark, but she left no square inch of ground unexplored. She found noth- for ng else. The rings belonged to a man evidently. Her surmise in that particular was right. There were no ther metal parts of her apparel left. The nails in her shoes, the steel of her corset had rusted away and left no sign. There was nothing remaining but the two little baubles pressing against her own warm flesh.

So intent had she been that the sun had gone down before she ceased and upon the island there descended that quick and sudden night of the tropics. The wind had risen, the old ocean was thundering on the barrier reef and a heavy sea breeze was shricking through the trees. The sky on the horizon was overclouded and the clouds were rising rapidly. There would be a storm, which was developing with tropic rapidity. Quickly she retraced her steps along the sand toward the cave on the other side, the

They had progressed not more than half way when the storm bust upon them. Peals of thunder and flashes erself to her task went toward the of lightning filled the air. It was such coppice where lay the ghastly remains | a display of the Titanic forces of na vague terror. She noticed with satisfaction that the man was entirely unmoved by the terrific demonstralightning as they stumbled along in the otherwise total blackness she could see his face serene. In a moment of apprehension she caught his hand with her own and clung to it tightly. It was the unconscious appeal of the physical weaker to the physical stronger. Her hand had clasped the hands of her fellow creatures many times. Never before had his palm less a woman's. She could feel that tremor run through him, but by instinct, as it were, he met her hand clasp with his own, and together they made their way to the cave. They had scarcely reached it when the rain burst upon them. The heavens they beat upon the sands in fury. She as apparatus which would be helpful could not drive him out there in that in the curriculum through which she flood for the night. She motioned meant her savage pupil should pass. the cave which was sheltered from the wind and which was dry and still. She It was an American watch of the very and then, withdrawing herself into a with her through the waters such was recess at the side, she disposed of the the workmanship of the case that is oars, which she had carried home on had taken no harm. It was ticking her shoulders, in front of her from away bravely, marking time. She wall to wall and lashing them with thought that for her time had stopped, and yet she was glad, indeed, for the feeble barrier, but which would yet almost human sound it made when she give the alarm to her and waken her laid it fovingly against her cheek. If it were moved. And presently she went to sleep. She was too tired even to speculate on her discoveries enabled her to keep her hair in order be occupation for the morning.

The Voices of the Past. It rained hard during most of the night. The woman slept lightly and whenever she woke she could hear outside of her sanctuary the roar of the storm. The man, as usual, slept the long hours through as undisturbed by the commotion as a child. It was it into the bosom of her tunic and apparent to her that he had absolutely making sure that the confining rope no fear. Whether this was due to igconditions in which his life had been She laid them in the bottom of the avoidances, abhorrences, antipathies, gathered up those of the dog which fear or was it something else? Was them in that rude Viking sepulture, been on the island a long time. It the empty dinghy and the bones would that must have been about that steel clasps of the dog's collar entire-

Upon that faint memory that he prayed, she could build the foundation cessful in training him and in restrainconfidence in her ability to do so to anguage than anything to which he | mental education and stimulus which Indeed, she thought bitterly, as she ing, and presently a familiar sound or the night, that the rest of the world was heavily engraved and she had you if you are not satisfied. two flashed into her mind that he was nothing to her and that she hated no difficulty in making out the words: in chronic cases length of treatment was making use of a prayer which she it. She, therefore, not only was be "John Revoil Charnock-life Dog" varies. For such cases, we have two was making use of a prayer which she it. She, therefore, not only was be "John Reveil Charnock-His Dog." her mind.

Then she threw herself down under the trees and rested. She had left the trees and rested the trees and rested. She had left the trees and rested the trees and rested the trees and rested the trees and rested the trees and rested. She had left the trees and rested the trees are tree to the trees and rested to her situation, but the trees and rested to her situation but the trees and rested to her situation that the trees and rested to her situation that the trees are trees to the trees and rested to her situation that the trees are trees to the trees are tr childish patition, "Now I lay me down teach him to think, to reflect, to read this was he and that the dog had been Perry's Drug Store."

She would teach him to talk given him when he was born. It was though there were ominous clouds all ence in their ages for gretted that she had not given more under which life was lived there. Much | great value. There was no insci philosophy would she gladly have tion of any sort within the parre rom vague recollections of childhood stories and romances; from carelessly scanned collections of voyages, books at, too small even for her brillia of travel and adventure. The result was unsatisfactory. In some particuwas her master. At the things which vention, a wedding ring, it was went to make up physical comfort and well being in a state of absolute na-abroad that she had the shelter of the rend, "to M. P. T.." There was a date cave, for everything was drenched the beginning of the wet season she knew that the rains would soon come again. Still she luxuriated in what freedom she had. Without removing ier single garment she plunged into the lagoon for a refreshing bath. The man followed her and swam about her moving slowly, with less skill than she, but as easily as a porpoise until she found the place: "I will mouth of the cave and brought thence fully piled upon the jutting shelf in passion came to her acress the long the shadow of the cave for time of years and with the ring sparkling need. She ranged them on the sands before her. There was the Bible and | tradition in personality and the wo the little silver box which she had an who had been so loved stood befound in the cave. She examined more critically its contents, wondering the man and the dream was broken.

About Her, Moving Slowly.

The Man Followed Her and Swam the ship and the woman, the little bo knowledge and then the uselessness of the power came across her curiously. What did she want of fire? There was nothing to cook. Its warmth was unnecessary. Still she was glad to have the ancient flame kindlers and she laid them aside carefully in the box, not knowing when they might be use ful, under what circumstances invalu were opened, the floods descended, able. At least she might regard them

Then there was her watch which best make, and although it had gone There were the hairpins, also, for which she was most grateful. They She had a wealth of glorious hair black as the midnight sky. With the aid of the mirror and of the comb. which also was a priceless treasure, she arranged it carefully according to the mode which best became her

Sometimes when she had finished he toilet, she shot a glance at the watch ful man, a human, natural instinctiv glance, but she was able to detect a change in his mental attitude, which was that of such complete and entire adoration, mingled with timidity an hesitation, that no transient change apparently was able to modify it. H looked upon her as he might have looked upon a god, she thought, had h known what a god was and had ther been such a thing to look at. There was also the pair of scissors ogether with the little housewife with needles and thread. Mirror, hairpins, scissors, sewing materials, combwoman's gear and the Rible, woman's book, she reflected with a certruth of her thought-a book for children, old women, and women-led men! Well, that philosophy upon which she sistance now and she could not afford that the world of many books offered

In the leather bag there was absotely nothing except broken glass and matched bottle tops of silver and bag itself was ruined. She sepa has not been rated the pieces of metal and the honestly believe them to be without metal fittings of the bag, which were equal. They give very prompt relief also of silver, and filling the rotting aiding to neutralize the gastric julces. cather with sand she presently sank strengthen the digestive organs, to it in the lagoon.

Last of all she examined what she had brought from the other shore of the island the night before. The sil- Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, ver was tarnished, but by rubbing it in, 15 days treatment. At the end of that slept and woke and slept until the philosopher, she concluded that the man was 25, three years older than of rare beauty, she judged. Although parted with for such practical infor- hoop of gold, although she searchof affairs out from scraps and tags of was curiously set. There was an e on either side of the setting, done heavier hoop of gold much engrave after, September 10, 1869, and then you; though the more abundantly beauty of the phrase caught her fancy She read with a strange new intere possessions, save the little the chapter in which these words her own white hand she embodied its fore her. Her eyes fell again upor she had of him, smiling as she did so at the thought of certain strange stor les she had read wherein men of mar relous deductive powers had brought to solution problems which appeared as impossible of detection as this presented to her. John Revell Charnock, evidently the ather of the man of the island, had married one M. P. T. on the 10th of September, 1869. Perhaps within a year afterward this John Revell Charnock, assuming him, as was likely, to have borne his father's name, was born. The best English stock in the colony were Massachusetts and Vicginin. The stern piece of the bo borne the name of a Virginia river and of a Virginia town. The man before her was a Virginian, therefore. te was born in 1871, it would make him 25 years old, in accordance with her first guess. The father an mother, possibly ruined by the result of the civil war, had embarked or ome vessel to seek a fortune in a new and. Something had happened to and the dog had landed in some way horrible voyage, perhaps like that she have been five or six years old, else The woman had, indeed, died, and the dog with her, and left the lad alone Alone he had been for a score of years on that island. What watchful Providence? lieved in no Providence. What strange mysterious fate kept him from the fate of the other two, had preserved him alone he might receive it, all the learning no further delay for those 25 years of and educated at great cost of time and money and effort? That she being a woman should give it all to thi one man without money and without

TO BE CONTINUED

Cause For Alarm

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating a Symptom That Should not Be Disregarded.

Appetite is just a natural desire for od. Loss of appetite or stomach stress after eating indicate indigestion dyspepsia Over-enting is a habi neral health. It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, There is nothing that will cause more people daily contract serious muladies simply through dis egard or from any stomach derangement, indi-ion or formality, if after reasonable use and have yet to hear of any one wh

Not An Editor.

A newspaper, in speaking of a deceas

Scotland, a pure white enew fell to the gun of one of the party. Not only was the bird pure white, but it had red or plak eyes like a white frable.

Scotland, a pure white enew fell to the admit it, but I kind of think Europe He stood allent, unresisting through it has no best on guides and press all, a rather pitful figure she thought agents.

WINTER TOURIST TICKETS

FICK II UP and go on.

their bows or across their sterns. She and after some deliberation essayed make them out. After some study ning that he had come to the island a Virginian. It identified him, if her er there was warrant for them or not, Admitting all this, however,

The above is the second instalment of hand fell against her breast. There look just as he was for 30 years or he'll own the harp and charge 'sm. learning the lesson of toil. If she could guage at which she was becoming exony keep pace with these great about the stress of t stract concepts she was putting into ity, ape-like agility almost, one of the our last issue can be had if you call or tell her? She could scarcely wall and which, after all, she realized was the nprehend what he had been say | lay awake during the long watches of

Read the contidued story.